

COVID-19 UPDATE

At Mamma Team we are committed to sharing with you the latest news & keeping our sets safe.

March 12th, 2020

- With the number of new cases going down and the improvement of the general overview of the Covid-19 situation in Spain, Germany is set to lift the travel warning for parts of Spain and Portugal.
 - From March 14th Mallorca and the entire Balearic archipelago will no longer be considered risk areas for travel due to a vastly improved epidemiological situation there. The same goes for the regions of Extremadura, La Rioja and Castilla-La Mancha, costal regions of Valencia and Murcia and For the entire northern half of Portugal (Norte and Centro regions) including Porto.
 - The removal of these regions from the list means that travellers will no longer be required to take a test on their return to Germany, nor will they need to go into quarantine. However, there will still be rules like wearing masks and observing social distancing.

- Spain is a safe destination, thanks to its "Covid-19 control" strict regulations and precautions. There are now two essential steps you need to check before your trip.
 - Passengers must complete an "FCS Health Control Form" at (<https://www.spth.gob.es/>). A QR code generated from the completed form must be presented upon arrival. Remember that you have to complete a separate form for each trip and each person
 - Passengers traveling from high-risk countries must submit a negative PCR or TMA test result (printed or digital) done 72 hours before the flight. Get in touch for more details and check the following website for the latest update and full country list. (<https://www.iatatravelcentre.com/world.php>)

October 27th, 2020

- In late October, the Spanish government announced new Covid-19 safety measures including a night-time curfew. Nevertheless, production work is still authorised to continue throughout the day AND DURING curfew hours, following usual local permits requirements for each city and up to date health & safety measures.

Secondly, we are very happy to share that Spain has created an Audiovisual Visa allowing everyone around the world to come to Spain for filming. So regardless of the latest travel restrictions in the EU & Spain, essential crew can now apply for this visa at their local Spanish embassy to join us on set in Spain. No quarantine on arrival in Spain necessary. Please get in touch with our Producers that can assist on this very simple procedure.
